SUMMARY

I am a backend software engineer with expertise in developing web applications. My primary skills include: Python, Flask web framework, SQLAlchemy ORM. I also have full-stack experience, having worked on "iDoc" project, a website that helps users book appointments with doctors. My education includes participation in the ALX Software Engineering program, where I received a scholarship. This program covered both foundational concepts of programming and backend specialization.

PROJECTS

IDOC(Doctor Appointment Booking System)

- Implemented a Booking Appointment web application to connect patients with suitable doctors, featuring a user-friendly interface.
- Developed iDoc, a web application for booking doctor appointments, aimed at improving the scheduling process and communication between patients and healthcare providers.
- Utilized Python with Flask and SQLAlchemy to create a robust backend system.
- Integrated WebSockets to ensure immediate updates and notifications for appointments.
- Managed source code using Git, facilitating teamwork and version control.
- Technologies : Python, Flask, SQLAlchemy, MYSQL, Socket.io for Backend, Html5, CSS3, Javascript(ES6) and Bootstrap5 for Frontend

Simple Shell(github)

- Developed a custom Unix shell as part of a collaborative project, demonstrating a solid understanding of operating system concepts and process management.
- Implemented command parsing, execution, and built-in command support (e.g., cd, exit).
- Managed signals for handling interactive shell behavior.
- Memory Management: Ensured efficient memory allocation and deallocation to avoid leaks.
- Implemented robust error handling mechanisms for common shell operations.
- Worked in a team, utilizing version control (Git) for collaboration and code management.
- Technologies: C, Unix System Calls, Git.
